Report on e-learning and flipped classroom feedback (Spring 2021)

Both e-learning and flipped classroom went excellently. The videos in the e-learning part were interesting and mostly understandable. Luckily, we discussed all the things from videos that weren't clear in our online classes. We really liked the flipped classroom and TED – talk activities because we could all participate and comment on each other. Besides, these activities are great for practicing public speaking which is important in today's world. Unfortunately, we weren't able to hold these activities in school due to coronavirus and that bothered us because we think we'd have had more use of them if we had done them live rather than online. Speaking of online classes, here are some questions that we had prepared for conversation:

What is IfixIT service?

What is 4R?

Where and when was the first EOR project implemented?

How companies optimize their production?

What does DFE stand for?
